To Ailing Women

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many a Sufferer in Norway.

No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off in the secretions when the kidneys are well, are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder become inflamed and swollen and worse troubles quickly follow. This is often the true cause of bearing down pains, lameness, backache, etc. Uric poisoning also causes headaches, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy that has cured thousands of such cases. You will get better as the kidneys get better and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a Norway woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Joseph A. Woods, Summer St., Norway, Me., says: "I am glad to say a word in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was annoyed for a long time by backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. I tried many remedies but got no relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The contents of two boxes brought me great relief. I might add that Doan's Kidney Pills also cured my little son of weak kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and no other.

Deep in the heart of the Oxford hills Neath the blue New England sky

Where many a bird sweet music trills, There born of sweet springs on the mountain side,

And longing to be free, A brooklet seeking old Ocean's tide

Graved a passage to the sea. Long years ago with foaming swirl

And waters eddying to and fro, Chaining the rocks in ceaseless whirl

It was the first of the old time, When the hills were still and green

And the hills dotted with green farms, On its edge fern's green frond.

Then onward still to the restless sea, It broadens to a lake.

With the bright hills just beyond, Where the hills dotting its green farms,

My Castle.

Written for the Advertiser.

I built me a castle, stately and grand, With bright domes of the finest gold,

And with towers of ruby and emerald tints, And with walls of white marble so cold.

And I said, "With my youth, and health, and pride, My castle great treasures shall hold,

I will harbor no evil, and feel no regrets And nothing shall marish the gold."

There all my heart's longings shall be satisfied, And from my loved castle I never will stray,

I will see that no trouble shall dim my fair skies, That all be like dreams on a bright summer day.

But alas! for those hopes, they are shattered and fled, The sunny days are gone, and the gold is but rust.

My fair castle towering so high in the air, Has fallen to earth, and has crumbled to dust.

Oh bright hopes and visions that make life so sweet, How oft I think of my castle so grand,

With its glittering banners of hope all unfurled, And with faith ever trusting all storms to withstand.

Others too, are building great castles and fair, Perchance they are noble and grand as was mine,

But as they fade, as do bright rainbow hues, And vanish from sight, this glorious shrine,

But some day my castle that vanished away, May come again after the fierce storms are o'er.

But in the grand and resplendent form, Forever to stand on an evergreen shore,

Perhaps it is well we have visions so fair, And that my bright castle but for one brief day.

That we see how transient are all of earth's things, And seek for those mansions that ne'er pass away.

Children's Column.

We Want the Children to Read This.

A number of years ago we had devoted a column of our paper to the children and it was known as the "Children's Column."

In this column were printed letters and stories written by the children and you would be surprised at the number of boys and girls that were interested in these letters and stories.

What was true of the boys and girls of a number of years ago, is true of them to-day. They enjoyed reading and answering letters from other boys and girls in different places and parts of the country and why wouldn't they be just as interested these days?

The boy or the girl who lives on the farm are interested to know what other boys and girls who live on the farm are doing; they also want to know what the boys and girls, who live in the village and in the city are doing and what they are interested in; and the boys and girls in the village and cities want to know what the boys and girls on the farm are doing and what societies and clubs they belong to, etc.

There are a lot of interesting little stories that you can tell us about, and if printed will interest some boy or girl somewhere in the United States, for there is hardly a state in the Union where there is not an ADVERTISER sent each week.

Now, we are going to see if the ADVERTISER boys and girls want to start in and help us print an interesting Children's Column, and we will try and do our part to make it interesting to you.

Let us use an interesting letter and as the saying used to be "If it escapes the Editor's waste basket it will appear in the ADVERTISER" under the Children's Column. Address your letter to "ADVERTISER, Children's Column," Norway, Me., and sign your name and give your age. Who will be the first one?

Gould's Academy has recently received a gift of $100 per year for five years, for present needs. It has also received $4,155.00 as a starter towards a permanent fund. It is hoped to make this fund $50,000 or $100,000, or even more.

Here is a chance for all friends of Gould's Academy to "lend a helping hand."

The stable adjoining the residence of C. C. Bryant on the corner of Mechanic and Winter streets was totally destroyed by fire last Saturday morning. The fire was discovered about six o'clock by Eli Stearns and the alarm rung in by Charles Heath. The Volunteer Fire Company and Company No. 1 responded quickly. It was impossible to save the contents of the stable as the fire had evidently been burning some time and the building was completely filled with dense smoke and flames. The loss will be considerable as the stable contained two automobiles, one horse, several sleighs and wagons, five various other valuable articles. It is estimated that the insurance will cover only one-fourth of this loss. The house which is connected with the stable was injured to some extent by smoke and a shed will have to be rebuilt. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Little Mary Bowler has been quite ill from ptomaine poisoning but is now convalescent.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

A Happy Event.

A very happy event of the past week was the pleasant reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sanderson to about forty of their friends in the village and vicinity on Thursday evening, March 14. It was the evening of the usual choir of "husband and Mrs. Sanderson, organist, had invited the choir to meet at her residence on that evening.

Soon after 8 o'clock, however, what was the surprise of herself and husband to find not only the members of the church choir, but a throng of wide awake ladies and gentlemen besieging them in numbers sufficient to occupy two parlors.

It was a scene of mirth and music and after a season of social hilarity an interesting presentation program was witnessed by those present when Rev. Mr. Sias, in behalf of the guests of the evening and several others who were not present, announced to Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson the gift of a beautiful and costly music chair, the special offering being tendered to Mrs. Sanderson in token of sincere regard for her personality and for her valued services for at least twelve years past as organist in the church and in the Grange, during which period she has freely given her talents as singer and player to all the requirements of those organizations.

It is a subject of much regret that Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson will soon move their residence to the farm in Harrison recently purchased by him, known as the Joshua Howard farm, near the head of Anonymous Pond, two miles from Harrison village.

The drama, The Corner Stone, given at Masonic hall last week by a home amateur company of players, was a complete success.

Carl Heath is at home on his vacation. Winifred Blaise is visited by the pink eye.

H. W. L. Walker attended court last week.

Philo Goodwin returned to his home after being away four months.

AMERICAN LAW 33697

Record 2.21 1-4 over half mile track.
The best producing blood in the State of Maine.

Sire, Heir-at-Law; record, trot 2.12; pace 2.05 3-4. Dam, Florence [Chimes by Chimes, 2.30 3-4, sire of "The Abbott" 2.03 1-2 and five others with records of 2:06 or better. Heir-at-Law sire of Minor Heir, 1.59 1-2 and over 50 in the list.

AMERICAN LAW is a horse of great substance and high finish; a fast, pure, game trotter. He is a type of a high class gentleman's driver, viz. good color, the right conformation, action and speed, combined. That he has the ability to transmit these qualities is shown in his get. He has to his credit American Chimes 2.14 1-4, Attorney-at-Law 2.18 3-4, American Blossom 2.10 1-4, Mamiee 2.24, and these from mares of no particular individual breeding.

We feel justified in saying that AMERICAN LAW mated with well bred mares, will be the equal of any horse in the State as a sire of extreme speed; and we invite the breeders of Oxford County to visit Mountain View Farm and know about American Law.

Indian Runner Ducks.

For ten years I have been raising Rhode Island Red chickens and I have always enjoyed raising them, but I thought it impossible for anything to come nearer my heart than the little red hen, but I want to say that the Indian Runners have won out, as they have a way of getting into one's good graces at a very early age.

After the first day or two you can almost see them grow. They gain so fast that at seven or eight weeks they are full grown to four and a half pounds. Where is the broiler that you can put four pounds in that length of time?

Last year I hatched fifty-four ducklings, and raised fifty-two of them, so you can readily see that they are not hard to raise. I crated them in a pen with twelve-inch poultry netting. Pen so constructed that it could be moved from place as desired.

Their house was a piano box cut in two and covered with two-ply paper, using a screen door for the front, so that no animal could get to them at night.

A piece of tarred paper the size of your coop with strips of lath at each end makes a good cover for the bottom and when this is covered with straw or coarse litter it is easily kept clean. Pull out the paper, dump litter and use water with broom to scrub the paper. This must be done every morning.

They are a contented bird, stand content well, and with ordinary care never learn to fly over a twelve-inch fence.

They are also intelligent and soon learn to scamp to the coop at night when you call. "To bed; to bed with you." Their heads pop up, they swing around a circle and in the dark will stand laughing at them.

One never tires watching them, especially when they have fresh water to play in. Although they are dry land ducks they enjoy water. A swimming pond or bath tub is easily made by getting a good tight box, warm it with your melted paraffin into the cracks and crevices. This makes a water-tight tub which is easily washed. Fill it and watch them play. You will have ample sport to pay for your trouble.

If you want to give them extra pleasure, give them green sprouted oats or lettuce. Swiss chard also is an excellent feed for ducks. This is grown in beds like lettuce, and is cut off it will sprout up again from the root.

I have had more enjoyment and profit from my ducks than I anticipated.

Mine are the 220-egg strain, almost solid fawn in color, and the eggs are pure white, weighing two pounds to the dozen.

If you want large eggs and plenty of them, if you want ducks of rare beauty, that are robust and hearty, if you want meat, sweet, tender and juicy, if you want a hatch that is worth the effort, if you want a fun-maker on the farm, if you want a thing of beauty and a joy for ever, if you want to make a good round profit from a small investment, try Indian Runner ducks. [Avery Poultry Yards Manager.]

HERRON.

The following class parts at Hebron Academy have been announced: Valet-dictory, Susan Martin; salutatory, Edith Merrill; class orator, Mrs. Miller; address to Halls and Campus, Francis Carl; address to The Girls, Marvel Martin; address to The Undergraduates, William Carey; presentation of gifts, Erna Thurston.

Wednesday evening last week a fire broke out in and around the chimney of Prof. Joy's house. The Hebron Academy chapel bell was rung and the members of the school fire department quickly ran the hose reel from its room in the basement of Stoughton house to the fire. Others quickly brought fire extinguishers by means of which the fire was quickly extinguished. Fortunately the rain which had fallen during the day kept the roof from catching, small damage being done.

The meeting was held in the evening at the vestry room of the church, where she has a beautiful summer home situated in South Chatham, N. H., a few miles from Fryeburg, has many friends in Maine, who are much interested in her work in Domestic Science. She is a very interesting speaker and the food prepared by her and according to her recipes of cookery, is delicious. Mrs. Hill has many friends in Fryeburg and vicinity.

Is the Woodshed Filled?

While the greater proportion of our fuel is burned coal of some kind for fuel both winter and summer, there is still a considerable territory in which wood is plentiful and cheaper than coal. There is usually not much trouble about getting the woodshed filled, or at least having wood piles convenient during the winter.

The fact is that the boys have to see to it or go cold; if it is in the woodshed, the mother and sister must get the fuel for the cook stove in the summer to be found empty when spring comes. Now this is not good.

We don't pity the boy or young man who has neglected to provide wood for the summer, if, when taking his rest after dinner in hot weather, as he ought to, he has to go and hustle some fire wood.

Now, the nice way for the boy in this country to treat his mother is to fill the woodshed up with nice, sound wood cut into stove lengths, and split fine enough during the winter so that your mother and sister will have no trouble in starting a fire.

We have great hopes for the future of the boy who will do this. It means that he loves his mother. It means that he is thoughtful. It means there is some thing in him. It is a prophesy of character and future success; for to the acute observer it is the little things like these that determine whether a boy is "worth raising or not."

A Woman's Essay on Man.

A boy can sit still on a sled six inches square, tied to a sleigh moving down a mile an hour, but couldn't sit still on a sofa five minutes for a dollar. A man will sit on an inch edge of a board and talk politics for three hours; put him in a chair and he will be fast asleep. A man will punch his cheeks with filthy tobacco, juices run down to his chin, feels good; but a hair in the night, who don't know where he is, comes home when he pleases, but if meal is not ready just on time, pouts, frowns, and says unpretty things. Evidently man is a strange animal. Gets full, beastly drunk, imagines he's rich, a great man, bets on the losing horse, gets broke, quarrels, fights, lands in jail, eyes dressed for Easter, face freckled and morals depraved, yet he is the Lord of all creation and monarch of all he surveys. Strange animal, this man.

Three separate fires were discovered in the saw room of the Dearborn Spool Co., Mill at Bryant Pond, Sunday night last week. Sheriff Bicknell of Norway has been investigating.

Make up Your Minds, Girls!

The Best Way to Observe Leap Year—Try to Decrease the Divorce Evil.

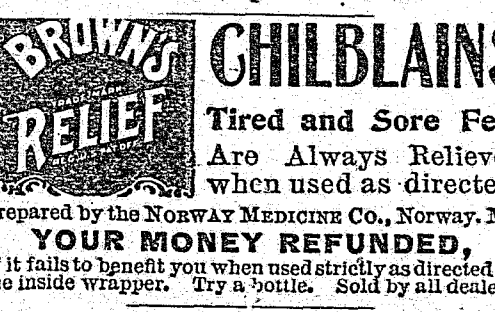

Perhaps St. Patrick permitted the women to propose marriage in leap year, and thus established a tradition which survives as the subject of idle jest. Perhaps the idea of leap year proposals originated in Scotland in the thirteenth century. It makes no difference. Women have never offered themselves as wives to the men of their choice often in leap year. When a woman wants to marry a man she frequently—we had almost said—usually—accomplishes her purpose. If it suits her as it generally does, to compel him to make the formal proposal, she knows how to accomplish that purpose, too. Leap year in that respect is a humbug. As a matter of fact, it has no significance at all. It is a makeshift to correct, in a clumsy way, an error in the accepted calendar. The only thing it has to brag about is the 29th of February, which generally comes and goes without notice. The superiority of the male sex in that day is not accounted more conspicuous than on any other days. The superiority of woman in many important respects is freely acknowledged throughout the civilized world every day of every year.

We do not think it would increase her attractiveness or magnify her social importance if she should take the leap year tradition seriously and "pop the question" instead of inspiring the act of popping. Every offer of marriage is made with a chance of rejection. We do not now recall the exact estimate of the statisticians as to the application of the law of chance in this matter, but we all know that men are sometimes rejected. If that were not the case, and had been the case since the institution of marriage, the body of the world's poetry would be much smaller than it is. Blighted affection has inspired tomes of verse. Few women would care to place themselves in the position of rejected suitors, even if they could thus acquire poetic inspiration.

We do not advise the women to take upon themselves the duty, or office, or privilege of proposing marriage in this year 1912, but we do urge them to be careful to make up their minds seriously before saying "yes." Wedlock is a desirable state, and divorce is probably a necessary institution. But it would be better to decrease the scandalous number of divorces, even at the expense of decreasing the number of marriages. —[New York Times.]

Perhaps nothing illustrates better the vicissitudes of pronunciation in English than a study of what is called the "Irish brogue." This linguistic mode, for it is scarcely to be called a dialect, is usually presumed to be a deterioration of language due to lack of education and contact with legitimate sources of English. It proves after a little study to be a preservation of the old method of pronouncing English, which has come down to a great degree unchanged in Ireland from Shakespeare's time.

Special Legislative Session.

Our readers will doubtless desire to keep fully informed on matters at the State Capitol during the coming special session of the Legislature. Several important questions are already booked for action, such as the proposition of again submitting the liquor question to popular vote, submitting an amendment to the constitution to permit an issue of bonds for good roads, the re-districting of the State, and the amendment of the election laws, while others now unknown will doubtless be brought forward early in the session. Affecting as they will the welfare of all the people of the State, no prominent public man can afford to do otherwise than maintain a close watch upon the proceedings of our law makers from day to day.

The Kennebec Journal is the only paper in Maine which publishes the official stenographic reports of the legislative proceedings. These reports include all debate and are complete. In addition to stenographers in both the House and Senate, the Journal will have a full corps of special reporters who will keep a sharp watch of the committees and other matters of interest connected with the session. Advance notices of all committee hearings are also published in the Journal.

The length of the session can only be estimated, but it is not likely to exceed one month. The price of the Daily Kennebec Journal for one month is 50 cents. Subscriptions will be started immediately on receipt of order and will be sent to the end of the session without extra charge. Address all orders to Kennebec Journal, Augusta, Maine. 11-12 is likely to have an off-day occasionally. It may follow from eating too heartily, or it may come from overwork, or perhaps from exposure when fatigued. A dull, heavy, tired feeling in the morning, a headache or a cold in the early stages; these symptoms unite a person for doing his best, and may lead to illness if neglected.

There is a remedy, safe, sure and reliable which should be in every household for just such emergencies, the true and original L. F. Atwood's Medicine. It may be safely used by persons of any age, from children to those well advanced in years.

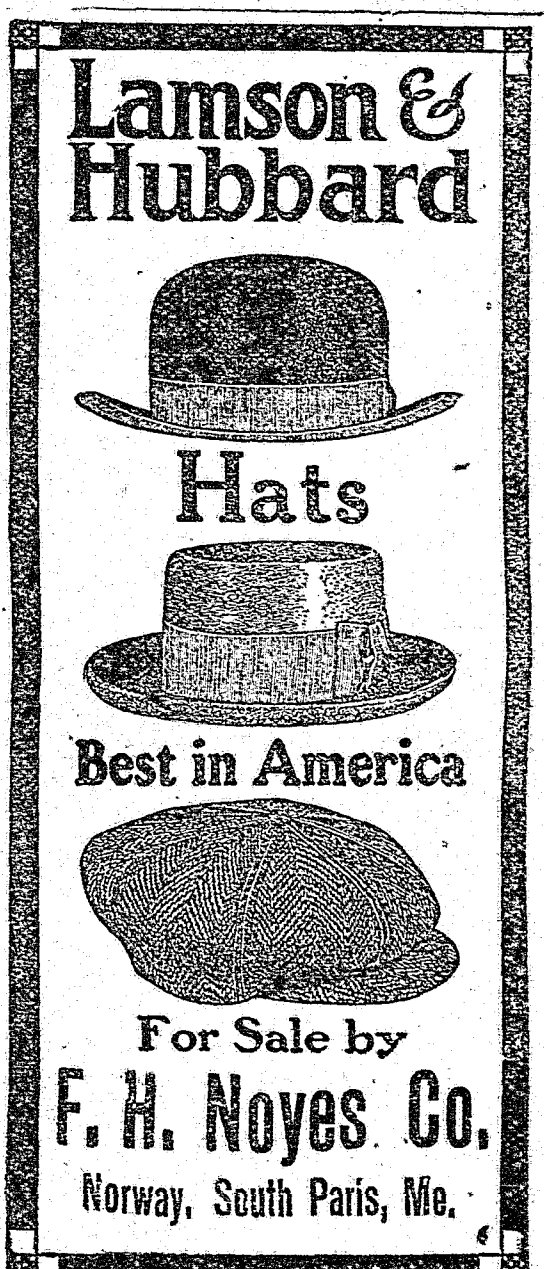

"I find the L. F. Atwood Medicine a sure cure for sick headaches. We have used it in our family for forty years and it would not get along without it." Miss A. E. Leonard, Laconia, N. H.
